Wage & Hour Bill Compromise Paves Way for Final Enactment of Much-Disputed Measure

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The joint congressional committee compromised on wage & hour legislation Wednesday by agreeing to the imposition of a universal wage of 40 cents an hour in all interstate industries at the end of seven years, except where such a wage would cause unemployment.

Clarence E. Baker Announces for the Office of Sheriff

Hope Man Asks for Support of Voters in August 9 Election

Clarence E. Baker, enforcement officer of Hope and Hempstead county the past 14 years, announced in The Star's political column today as a candidate for sheriff and collector subject to the action of the Democratic primary election August 9.

In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Baker briefly reviewed his career as an enforcement officer which began in April of 1924 as night policeman of Hope.

Later he was appointed chief field deputy under former Sheriff John L. Wilson, serving in that capacity two years. He resigned then to accept the appointment of Chief of Police of Hope under former Mayor R. A. Boyett.

For the past three years Mr. Baker has served as policeman, and after the resignation of John W. Ridgill, he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Ridgill as chief of police.

"After 14 years experience as an enforcement officer I feel that I am qualified to serve the people of Hempstead county as their sheriff and collector."

"I was a candidate for sheriff four years ago and was defeated by a small vote—nearly the race at that time without obligating myself to anyone. I expect to carry out the same policy in this campaign."

"My friends in Hope and from all parts of the county have prevailed upon me to make a second race for sheriff, and after due consideration I have decided to ask the people for their vote and support for this important office which I feel that I am capable and well-qualified to fill."

"If elected to this office I will enforce all the laws to the best of my ability and will see that all the people get the protection and courtesy they are justly entitled to."

"I also promise that if elected each deputy I have will meet the approval of the majority of the people—and that they will not be selected until after the election."

"Upon these promises, I submit my candidacy to you for the office of sheriff and collector of Hempstead county, and will sincerely thank you for your vote and support," Mr. Baker concluded.

Philippine Laws Submitted to U. S.

One of First Measures Outlaws Cockfighting at Polling Places

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Freshly delivered to congress is a little bundle containing some of the first laws produced by the new and independent Philippine commonwealth. One of the initial efforts was a measure to outlaw cockfighting at polling places.

Under the new independence act, all laws enacted by the Philippine congress must be submitted to this government for approval.

They give up a close-up glance at a little country putting on its first long pants in the big wide world and if some of the output sounds trivial it must be conceded that other ideas are good and might be followed in the United States without harm.

In the pile of laws is an abolishing the poll tax, which in times past

The compromise would provide for a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour, with no exceptions, for the first year. This would be advanced to 30 cents the following year.

After this the boards appointed by the central administrator would be empowered to examine conditions in individual industries to determine the minimum wage to be paid by these industries.

Deputy Conner Is Indicted in Death

Held for Voluntary Manslaughter in Shooting of J. D. Flynn

LITTLE ROCK.—Deputy Sheriff J. D. Conner was indicted by the Pulaski county grand jury Tuesday on a charge of voluntary manslaughter for the fatal shooting of J. D. Flynn, 37, division manager of the Arkansas Fuel Oil Company. The shooting occurred at the Two-Way filling station on the Little Rock-Hot Springs highway May 30.

Mr. Conner was placed under $1,000 bond. Prosecuting Attorney Fred A. Dunham said the trial probably would be held at the fall term of Circuit Court in September.

Conviction of voluntary manslaughter carries a penitentiary sentence of from two to seven years. Under the indictment a jury could find him guilty of voluntary manslaughter, involuntary manslaughter or second degree murder, each carrying a maximum one-year prison sentence.

At his own request Deputy Conner was relieved of his duties pending investigation of the case.

Deputy Conner said that he shot Mr. Flynn in self-defense after the oil man had attacked him during an altercation at the filling station. He said Mr. Flynn had been drinking. The deputy fired one shot, the bullet passing through the abdomen. Death occurred five hours later.

Negro Churchman Wounded, Robbed

Attacked by Two Negroes Thugs, Robbed of $2,319 College Funds

LITTLE ROCK.—The Rev. O. Sherman, negro, about 44, presiding elder of the Central District African Methodist Episcopal church, was wounded critically and robbed of $2,319 belonging to Shorter College, North Little Rock, negro college, as he arrived at his home, 802 Hickory street, North Little Rock shortly after 8 Tuesday night.

He was shot by one of two negroes who followed him from a meeting of the Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees of Shorter College, which was held at Bethel A. M. E. church, Sixth and Locust streets, North Little Rock.

The minister made a futile effort to capture the thugs after he was shot. He drove on a wild chase to Sixteenth street and Pike avenue, where he collapsed from loss of blood, after calling his car.

Night Chief of Police Anderson said the robbers apparently had previous knowledge of the meeting of the college Board of Trustees. Funds raised in each of the 18 Arkansas districts for the operation of the college next year, were delivered to the meeting. The Finance Committee met at 7 Tuesday night, and the money was turned over to Sherman.

Two negroes, described by police as familiar with procedure of the college, were picked up for questioning late Tuesday night.

Big Crowds Greet Courthouse Tour; Carrigan Speaks

Hope Attorney Delivers Opening Address at Blevins, McCaskill

LUNCHEON AT OZAN

Motorcade of 50 Automobiles, Hope Boys Band on Tour

Despite a downpour of rain, big crowds greeted the Hempstead County Courthouse Removal Motorcade at Blevins, McCaskill and Ozan Wednesday.

The motorcade of some 50 automobiles carrying the 45-piece Hope Boys Band, speakers and other citizens, paused at Ozan at noon where the women of the Methodist and Baptist churches served a free luncheon.

Attorney Steve Carrigan of Hope delivered the opening address at Blevins, the first stop of the tour, and also spoke to a big crowd at McCaskill.

Carrigan First Speaker

At Blevins, Mr. Carrigan was introduced by former County Judge H. M. Stephens. Speaking from a truck parked in the center of the street, Mr. Carrigan said:

"The people of Hempstead county have the most antiquated courthouse in this end of Arkansas. It was a fine building 64 years ago during the stagecoach days—but times have changed since then. The present building has long since served its day. It is not modern, and has no modern conveniences."

"Our present county jail is in such a run-down condition that it will require an expenditure of $25,000 in the immediate future. We have got to build a new courthouse and a new jail—so why not put them together in one single building in the town of Hope, the biggest town in the county, the center of population and the most conveniently located place in the county for all concerned."

"Right here in Blevins, the old stage-coach use to travel through here. People at that time were content to travel five miles and hour. Those were the days of log houses, the days of the candle light."

"Times have changed since then. Here in Blevins you have a fine brick school house, a fine gymnasium and fine churches. You have electricity. You don't live in log houses any more. You live in painted houses and enjoy modern conveniences. The town of Blevins has kept pace with other progressive-minded towns."

"As I said at the outset, the present courthouse 64 years ago was a fine building. But it has served its day. We must build a new courthouse. We must have a new jail. Let's go to the polls Saturday and vote for removal of the site to Hope. The federal government is now launching a big spending program. The government will furnish 45 per cent of the cost."

"Almost every county and city in Arkansas are taking advantage of the opportunity to build fine new buildings. We as citizens will eventually pay for those buildings—so why not take advantage of the opportunity that confronts us now. With the government furnishing 45 per cent of the cost, we will save $100,000 for ourselves by voting for removal of the courthouse from the present antiquated structure," Mr. Carrigan declared.

McCaskill Visited

The motorcade arrived next at McCaskill where Mr. Carrigan spoke from a truck in the street. From McCaskill the motorcade moved on to Bingen, Belton, Union and Ozan for luncheon. Mayor Albert Graves was to speak at Ozan.

Because of muddy roads, the caravan was forced to omit the town of Columbus. From Ozan the motorcade was to go to Nashville, south to Mineral Springs and into Saratoga, McNab and Fulton the last stop.

R. P. Bowen, secretary of Hope chapter of commerce, expressed regret that the caravan was unable to go to Columbus. He said that Columbus would possibly be included on Thursday's tour which follows:

Thursday, June 9

Dawn	8:00	8:30
Beard's Chapel	9:00	9:30

A. M. Stroud, Washington landowner and head of the committee directing the fight to retain the Hempstead county-seat at Washington, was reported to be following the motorcade from Hope, with Attorney Pat Casey of Hope, as one of the speakers.

George Steele, Nashville attorney, was reported ready to join the motorcade when it reached McNab.

Breaks Definitely With F.D., and Plans Raid on G.O.P., Too

"Any Basic Attack on Today's Problems Splits Either Party," Says LaFollette—Invited to Address Vermont G. O. P.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

MADISON, Wis.—The first thing you learn here in looking into the LaFollette Progressive "third party," is that there isn't any party. Let "Governor Phil," sitting in his dim, quiet office beneath the dome of the state capital, explain:

"The National Progressives of America is an unincorporated association attempting to build a party state by state," he says. "It is not yet a party. Only when we have a functioning organization in 10 or 20 states can we call a real party convention, effect a real national party organization, and adopt a concrete platform."

That definition of his movement today is Governor Phil's answer to two criticisms that have been hurled at the Progressive movement: first, that its procedure thus far has been distinctly undemocratic, and second, that its program is too indefinite.

His answers boil down to this, that you can't have a democratic movement until you have great masses of people attached to it. The early stages of any political move must revolve around a single leader. And the program is advisedly indefinite, as a hard target at which opponents can aim.

Further Phil LaFollette means to the compass rather than the blueprint. If the direction is true, the exact road to the destination can be developed as one goes along, he feels, and further, that is what any party in power does anyway.

Quiet-spoken, smiling not with a "camera smile," but as one who smiles inside himself in quiet enjoyment of some hidden humor, Governor LaFollette certainly gives no outward sign of being the potential Fascist he has been painted.

When you put the question squarely to him, he does not bristle or shout with an indignation that "both protest too much." He simply nods a quiet, confident nod, and says "Look at the record."

He means the record that shows his upbringing as the carefully-taught son of one of the most devoted lovers of democracy America has yet produced; his record in state politics with three terms as governor.

New Party Is No Mere Gesture

One other thing Governor LaFollette disposes of with a quiet set of the jaw and flash of teeth that are the only physical indication of the forceful leadership which has put him in his present unique position. He is it: he is the deadly serious about forming a new party. It is not merely a gesture to exert a pressure from the left to keep President Roosevelt from going too conservative. Phil LaFollette has definitely put his hand on the plow and he does not propose to look back.

"We are in a position where any really basic attack on today's problems splits either party," he says. "Any effort Roosevelt may have made to convert the Democratic party into a Progressive group has failed. So far as basic principles go, and real relationship to today's issues, the present parties might as well be parties in Australia. Basically they have no reality."

County Ticket Will Close on Thursday

Deadline for Candidates Is Less Than 48 Hours Away

Candidates seeking county offices have less than 48 hours to file party pledges and pay ticket fees, the list to close at midnight Thursday, it was announced Wednesday by W. S. Atkins and J. L. Eley, chairman and secretary of the Hempstead County Democratic Central committee.

Township candidates have until July 9 in which to file their pledges and pay fees.

The deadline had originally been announced for midnight June 8 for county offices and midnight July 8 for township candidates.

Forms to be used for party and corrupt practice act pledges may be obtained from J. L. Eley of Nashville, R. F. D. 1, or at the office of W. S. Atkins in Hope.

The ticket fee may be paid to either Mr. Eley or to Mr. Atkins.

There are no jury trials in China. In the lower courts, all powers are vested in a single judge. In the case of appeal to the high court, three judges render final decision.

Robbers Enter Bank Before Opening, Tie Up 7, and Escape

SHREVEPORT, La.—(AP)—The Minden (La.) Bank & Trust Co., 30 miles east of here, was robbed at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The robbers escaped in a blue sedan after tying up everyone in the bank.

The bandits took between $20,000 and $25,000.

At Little Rock, Captain Cliff Atkinson of the Arkansas State Police said the methods employed by the bandits indicated that Charles Chapman, notorious south Arkansas outlaw, might have been involved.

The robbers hid in the bank before opening time, tied up seven persons and left in an automobile, their direction undetermined in early reports.

James Meek, cashier of the Bank of Bradley, at Bradley, Ark., robbed Tuesday, identified two of the robbers there as Floyd Hamilton and Ted Walters, both of Texas, Sheriff T. R. Hughes of Caddo parish (Shreveport) said Wednesday.

Meek identified the two from pictures sent him by Hughes.

Seek Floyd Hamilton

SHREVEPORT, La.—(AP)—Three men and a woman, one of them believed to be Floyd Hamilton, tri-state fugitive are being hunted in the extreme northwest tip of Louisiana, near Rodessa, where the four were believed to have fled after robbing the Bradley (Ark.) bank of $68,240.

The bandits' car was trailed from Bradley to a point three miles from Plain Dealing. It had been abandoned in thick woods nearby. Sheriff L. H. Padgett of Bossier parish and Sheriff O. Griffin of Lewisville, Ark. found a camp site apparently used by the bandits for several days. The bandits, apparently had transferred to another car at this spot.

The abandoned auto, brought to Shreveport, was identified as one stolen at Vivian, La., May 15, a theft which officers previously attributed to Hamilton.

Lat Tuesday morning bags, tentatively identified as those used by the bandits, were found on the streets of Bossier City. Officers started for Bradley to establish positive identification.

Federal agents attempted to identify fingerprints on the abandoned auto.

Bossier City authorities received a report from Arkansas State Police that the robbers were hiding near the little town of Three States, near the point where Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas meet.

The "Oppressed" Minority in Czechoslovakia

MOST of us are pretty cynical nowadays about that great slogan of the World war — "Make the world safe for democracy."

By and large, there is substantially less democracy in Europe now than there was in 1914, and the democracy that remains seems in a fair way to diminish. If those four horrible years were indeed devoted to saving democracy, one can say that they were tragically wasted.

Yet there is one spot in Europe which has democracy now and which did not have it in 1914—whose democracy is, in fact, a direct result of the war and does justify the wartime slogan. That spot is Czechoslovakia. And now that the pressure is being put on, no American can fail to have a keen interest in Czechoslovakia's democracy and its gallant fight to survive.

INDEED, America is by way of being that nation's godfather. Masaryk, the man who founded the Czech republic and became its first president, did the bulk of his work in America. The country's constitution was written in America, its independence was proclaimed in Washington, and the active sympathy of our government was one of the chief reasons why that independence was made good. And Czechoslovakia, incidentally, is one of the few spots in Europe where the name of Woodrow Wilson is still remembered gratefully.

All of which simply means that in that one place the high ideals which brought America into the war have actually justified themselves. The cause of human freedom—which in the long run, means human happiness—was actually advanced by the allied victory there. Czechoslovakia's independent existence is to be cherished as one of the few indisputably valuable fruits of the World war.

NOW that independence is menaced by Nazi Germany; and it might be as well for Americans to understand just how hypocritical is the Nazi concern over the oppressed German minority in Czechoslovakia.

First of all, that minority is probably the least oppressed minority in all of Europe. It enjoys free speech, a free press, freedom to come and go as its members please; it is hard to see how the Czech government could give it a fairer break and still retain its own existence.

Secondly, there exists nearby a German minority which undeniably is oppressed—the Germans of the Italian Tyrol. If Nazi concern for abused compatriots living under foreign tyranny were sincere, it would be Italy and not Czechoslovakia which would be the target of German pressure right now.

What is going on is simply a bare-faced attempt at conquest, with even less to justify it than there was in the case of the Italian seizure of Ethiopia. Considering all the facts, it is hard to see how any American's sympathies can fail to lie 100 per cent with the Czechs in this crisis.

Picture of a Criminal

NEWS stories about "boy bandits" bob up with regularity, and the public mind, becoming accustomed to them, acquires the habit of regarding all juvenile delinquents in the news as "boy bandits"—a class of criminals distinguished only by its tenderness of years.

Might it be suggested, without provoking too many cries of "criminal-pampering!" that it is quite stupid to lump boys together in a "bandit" class as it is to house them in institutions with criminal adults?

Four boys were arrested for burglary in New York recently. They had "embarked on careers of crime," as the story put it, on an afternoon. They prepared themselves by carving symbolic crosses on their arms. They went to two movies first, and then robbed a florist's shop, where they took some small change from a cash register.

Boys who embark on "careers of crime" by carving mysterious crosses on their arms somehow don't sound so much like "boy bandits" as just boys.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOE MURRAY—liked new places, new jobs, new girls.
HELEN—fell in love—hard—once.
TERRY MALLOW—found love—and kept it!

Yesterday Joe eliminated Tommy Withers but in so doing he has drawn Terry closer. She now hangs on to him for dear life.

CHAPTER VIII

JOE saw, of course, the obvious little tricks she used to persuade him to make a second visit after that first one, a third after that, and a fourth—all the artless wiles she practiced to flatter him and interest him. But who could mind? They were so obvious.

It was altogether unprecedented, and in no way resembling in the least the terms of the bargain Joe thought he had made with Terry, but it was there, unanswerable. She needed him. He had taken a job on himself, assumed a responsibility. If it weren't so downright serious, he'd probably rebel, on principle. And paradoxically, if it weren't at the same time so pleasant and beguiling and amusing, watching her excited and thrilled and rapt and enjoying herself unbelievably over the trifling pleasures, he'd probably have drifted soon in sheer weariness of responsibility. He did not. He did not want to.

It was a queer, upsidown existence. But it was something to do, something with significance and meaning. How it would all come out he had no idea. They were two equally lonely souls who found it convenient to pretend a great importance to each other, to combine in partnership against the almost irresistible pressure of life, and the ending was of no consequence beside the peace of the moment.

They went to Merlin Park several times that spring. They went for Sunday excursions on the river boats. They went to moving pictures and to chop suey restaurants and saw the circus and heard a band concert in Graham Hall. They went to the dances at the political club to which the older Murrys cleaved. They rented a little car of nights and went out to Magnolia Gardens, which was a noisy little roadside on Fairmount Turnpike where the orchestra played St. Louis Blues at frequent intervals because it suited their peculiar talents and the prevailing mood.

YOU will be curious to know how they did all these things in the face of the grim Malloes. Joe was curious himself. There had been a tussle at first. They had set their face against him rigidly, but he had ignored them, blantly if with frequent suppressions of temper, and worn them down.

And then all at once they withdrew all opposition, scrutiny, even curiosity. They left the two of them alone when he came, even so far as to close the door deliberately between them. They made no comment of any kind in Terry's hearing when he had gone. They were not approving; they were simply holding off, waiting. It was not like them.

It came suddenly to Joe that they were furthering a marriage they thought they saw in the arrangement . . . even to the extent of leaving him in undisturbed privacy for hours at a time with their unreliable and wayward granddaughter, in hopes . . . in hopes!

It was an infuriating thought. The meanness of that! They would be rid of her, and in a way that would justify them utterly. It was against nature—and yet there it was!

It caused a reaction in Joe Murray. It set him to thinking. A man begins to go about with a girl, and pretty soon people smile and like matters for granted, and first thing you know they are married, whatever they may have thought in the beginning. That was right enough. But here he was going about with a girl, and her family were thinking of marriage in their own twisted way . . . other people probably drew their own conclusions as well. . . .

HIS own people. He had long stopped talking about Terry at home. Terry had long stopped dropping in. There was a certain tension at home; they dared not broach personal questions, but they were thinking, and he could feel it. They were like any family anywhere, jealous and particular. They did not think so much of Terry as a wife for him. With that family the best he had, you couldn't blame them. They wanted a fine, proud, beautiful girl for him, somebody with substance and importance and cleverness, who would at the same time adore him madly and manage him coolly and expertly, saving his money and running his home and mothering his babies. His mind you! How hopeless their dream!

He could never make the grade with a girl like that, even if so miraculous a person did happen to want him. He might try. But he would fail. She would be too much like Helen. When he thought of falling in love again, of choosing himself such a fine, proud, beautiful wife, he only thought of Helen, and the other faded to nothingness.

And what would they have made of Helen, if he had brought her to them? They called her "Polack." Not now, but once they had. "Polack!" They knew nothing of the pitiful endearment in that word. They knew nothing of the beauty he had almost, almost possessed. They knew nothing about the happiness, the suffering, the quality and power of his dream. They did not know anything about him. He was alone, among friends, among kin.

Except for Terry. That was a strange thing. He was not in love with Terry. She did not stir him; he never felt brutal and tender with her, darkly, hungrily, as he had with Helen. He had even, in the total absence of all emotion, told Terry all about Helen. He was not in love with Terry. Yet she understood him.

"YOU must have loved her terribly, Joe," she told him, sweetly and solemnly. Terry was not at all effervescent and childishness. "I guess a man loves that way only once in his life—and only one man in a dozen even once, that way. It's something to be proud of and thankful for, even though it hurt you so. Because it's perfect and nothing can ever make the least mark on it. Don't you feel that?"

He did, in the end. But he had a thought, a difficult thought. Perfection was not for an everyday man in a workaday world. A man who has known perfection once is ready to die. There is nothing left. He told her that, gropingly.

"Oh, but there is!" she insisted. She seemed for an instant to lift her bright eyes up to an ever shining vision. "There's so much left. I've never had anything, but I always kept thinking of all I was going to have some day. Don't you ever think of homes all your own, where everybody and everything there is all yours and you can love them and nobody to stop you? Babies all your own . . . She looked at him. "Think of that!" she said.

He thought. Those things were lovely. But they were not real. They were only scenery on a stage from which a presence was gone and where a voice was stifled.

"I don't know," he said. "I'll all work out. But I quit thinking about things, any kind of things, a long time ago."

Pick-Ups in News and Gags On a Tour Around the Lots

HOLLYWOOD—For their vaudeville tour together, Jackie Coogan and Bob Hope are working into their patter the story about a movie mother who let her gangling daughter into the office of the head of a studio. "Of course, she is a little LARGE," the parent gushes apologetically. Then she added, triumphantly, "But we HAVE kept her MIND back!"

The secretary of a conceited actor telephoned the set the other morning and said that the player couldn't report for work because he was suffering from indigestion.

"What did he do," barked the director, "swallow his pride?"

Tyrone Power is having dates with June Wilkins, a bit player with a stock-company contract. Such a romance would be precedent-shattering if it led to marriage, because in caste-conscious Hollywood no star ever has married so far below his rank.

Illustrious Try-Out

Two celebrated actresses, Maude Adams and Dorothy Gish, were tested by David Selznick for the part of Ellen Fortune in "The Young in Heart," and neither was accepted.

The role goes to Minnie Dupree, 63, who was a stage favorite 20 years ago and who never has appeared before a movie camera. Incidentally, this was Miss Gish's first visit to Hollywood in 19 years.

Away From It All

Darryl Zanuck, warned by doctors that he'd have to take that long-delayed vacation, planned a quiet trip to Europe. Then he decided to take a couple of people along to help handle business matters which inevitably would pop up. Next he decided to add a few others for consultation on stories. So now the Zanuck "rest" cruise includes a group of 25.

Keys, Nails, Chest

Hollywood 5-and-10 stores have been selling souvenir gold keys since that Simone Simon testimony convulsed the town. . . . Pauline Goddard wailed when she had to cut off those inch-long talons to play her role as a secretary in "The Young in Heart."

And in the same picture, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., was indignant when

The Advances of Modern Science in the Fight Against Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis is now diminished in its incidence far below that of two previous generations; yet it still continues to attack mankind from youth to old age. The battle against its ravages goes on undiminished among physicians and workers in the field of public health.

Within recent years great progress has been made in the study of this disease and in the methods of attack upon it. The first steps have been concerned with the germ of tuberculosis. It has been possible to break it down chemically and to derive from the germ the active toxic substance. The use of the X-ray has been greatly improved for examination of the chest. Means have been developed for emphasizing among physicians the use of the X-ray in the early diagnosis of tuberculosis.

Other studies have been made on the manner by which the body defends itself against the germs of tuberculosis and their poisons. Several new tests have been developed which indicate the reaction of the body to the invasion by the germ of tuberculosis. It has been found, for example, that there is an increased rate of sedimentation, or settling of the red blood cells, in tuberculosis. While this is only one of the conditions in which such sedimentation occurs, the presence of this reaction may be taken as a warning.

Most significant in relationship to the spread of tuberculosis is the animal experimentation, which involves the elimination of tuberculosis from herds of cattle that have been tested. The periodic testing of herds of cattle and protection of herds against imported tuberculous animals is one of the most important means for stopping the spread of tuberculosis of the bovine type.

Today in 46 states and in the District of Columbia the incidence of positive tuberculin reactions among cattle has been reduced to about one-half of one per cent. When this work was first begun in 1915 on a large scale, the number of animals in a herd which would react positively to tuberculin was from five to 90 per cent.

Much has been learned about the differentiation of the types of tuberculosis. It has been found, for example, that the primary or first infection type of tuberculosis usually does not kill infants, and that those who

It is attracting some of them. How many, it is impossible to say with accuracy, but Governor Phil smiles his approval of the "tremendous response."

"The large number of letters from young people is impressive," he says, "especially in the south where the feeling is especially strong that progressive young people have no place to turn politically."

One of these requests from young people came from the Vermont Young Republicans, who invited Governor Phil to speak at their convention at Rutland June 4. He promptly accepted, and unless the Young Republicans are restrained by higher party authority, the first "raid" of the new political organization on an old party organization as such may soon be seen.

Seek Individuals Not Groups. Generally speaking, the plan for the new organization is not to "raid" old party organizations by block transfer of already-organized membership through deals with leaders. The aim is to get down to the individual direct.

This explains the fact that few

Gillette Victory in Iowa Slows Up Radicals' March

Conservative Democrat Beats Combined Vote of Opponents

PEAK PARTY VOTE

Iowa's Democratic Total Exceeds Total of Republican Primary

DES MOINES, Ia.—(AP)—Iowa Democratic leaders looked Tuesday night to Senator Guy Gillette to head party scars as Representative Otha D. Wearin brought a bitter senatorial primary to a close by conceding Gillette's victory. Wearin sent a telegram of congratulation to the senator as unofficial tabulation of the primary vote neared completion.

With only 11 of the state's 2,447 precincts still unreported, Gillette had polled 80,107 votes, more than 5,000 greater than the combined total of his four opponents. Wearin trailed with 42,282, while three other candidates shared the rest of the 154,797 Democratic votes cast.

Greatest Democratic Vote. The Democratic volume was the greatest in the Iowa party's primary history. It broke the old record of 143,000 cast, set in 1934, by more than 10,000 votes.

Wearin, who was supported by Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, and had the inferential backing of James Roosevelt, the president's son, would not comment when asked whether he would assist in the senator's campaign for re-election in the fall.

"I may have a statement in a few days," he said.

Former Senator L. J. Dickinson, who lost out in a re-election campaign two years ago, won handily over Representative Lloyd Thurston in the Republican senatorial primary. Dickinson polled 142,644 votes with only 16 precincts, mostly in rural areas, still unreported. Thurston's total was 108,321. Thurston pledged his support to the winner in the fall general election.

Blow for Radicals.

Gillette said repressions from the primary campaign formed "no occasion for resentment against any person." "But I join in the resentment of the people of this state," he added. He said the primary results will give "that left wing group, which started out to control the presidential party nomination in 1940, a very great incentive to stop and think things over."

Gillette will head the Democratic ticket in the fall. Party leaders, therefore, are doubly anxious to smooth rough spots which might endanger the success, not only of the senator, but of every elective state official as well. Iowa voters have departed from the custom of electing state officials by slates rather than by individuals only twice in recent decades.

Wearin would not comment today on the possibility that he might seek the Seventh district congressional nomination. None of the six Democratic candidates for the post given up by the representative when he entered the senatorial was successful in getting 35 per cent of the total vote cast for the nomination at Monday's primaries.

Iowa law requires a decision on the nominee by a district convention when the leading candidate fails to get the required 35 per cent. Conventions are not limited in their choice of candidates to aspirants who run in the primaries. Wearin, therefore, could be nominated for his present office again.

Everyone is busy laying-by their corn. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ross spent Sunday with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Till of Atlanta, Texas. Nora Lee Urtle and Margie Ray Sanders spent Saturday night with Louise Sollier.

Mrs. Stewart from Pea Wee Valley, Ky., and her daughter, Nelly of Chattanooga, Tenn., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Skinner and family.

prominent leaders were called in to help launch the movement, another point that has drawn criticism. Across from the capitol at Madison, occupying a sparsely-furnished suite with plenty of room for expansion, is the headquarters of the National Progressives of America.

There is little in the suite as yet except A. W. Zaratsky and Ralph W. Jurell. But that is a great deal. Jurell, World War veteran, adjutant-general of the state, is the executive and director of the drive. Zaratsky, a former mail-order magnate, is the contact man and "General Farley." Absent at the moment is Tom Duncan, the financial spark plug and one-time secretary to Socialist Mayor Dan Hoan of Milwaukee. He is on trial on a manslaughter charge following an auto accident.

The founder and spark plug of the new party organization was active in the 1924 campaign of his own father, Robert Marion LaFollette, when that veteran of the Progressive movement tried to break the traditional two-party lineup. The recollection of the failure of that year does not deter him today, and he says:

"The principal issue is: whether the government is able to provide or assist in providing a solution to the bread-and-butter problems of the people."

Coiffure and Make-Up Only Becoming When Becoming to the Occasion

For a quiet evening at home, Margaret Lockwood relaxes in a house coat and wears her hair in easy though flattering fashion. Still keeping the center part which sets off her lovely forehead to excellent advantage, the pretty star brushes her sports coiffure away from her face and loosens the ringlets at the back until they fall in soft cascades low on her neckline.

Margaret Lockwood, beautiful motion picture star, likes a casual easy-to-rearrange coiffure for active sports. When the young actress plays golf or tennis and so on, her healthy, shining hair is parted in the middle, then waved simply backward from her face. The ends of the back are curled up and off her neckline. Even a bathing cap won't spoil the lines of this hair-do.

For formal occasions, Margaret Lockwood brushes her hair smoothly upward from her face and neckline, then she pins a perfectly matched braid around her head in halo effect.

In rearranging her coiffure for evening when she plays the role of hostess, Margaret Lockwood pins her "at home" bob into a low bun, held in place by a decorative jeweled clasp.

NEA Service Staff Writer

Your coiffure and makeup, as well as your clothes, should suit the occasion. It's almost as impractical from a standpoint of good taste, not to mention economy, to wear an elaborate, easy-to-disarrange hair-do for tennis as it would be to play in a dinner gown instead of a backless tennis dress.

You may not want or find it possible to affect a special hair style for sports, another for daytime, a third for evening and so on, as do many motion picture stars. But if you have followed the mode and are wearing your hair up and away from your face and intricately waved and curled on top of your head, you certainly need a "second best" coiffure for summer. That is, if you like active sports at all. It can be ever so flattering, of course, but it ought to be simple to keep in place and easy to re-arrange even after a tight bathing cap has been pulled on and off.

Simple Coiffure That is Convertible

The ideal foundation hair cut for this season seems to be the one which leaves the hair low on the neckline (not high on the shoulders) at the back

Beware Splitting the Ends of Hairs

These may make his work simpler, but they "chop up" your hair, often splitting the ends. Thinning can and should be done with regular hair cutting scissors. Also, don't let anyone "frizz up" the ends with a razor. This, too, is likely to split the ends of each hair.

Unless your eyelashes are quite colorless, don't wear mascara for sports, or even in the daytime during summer months when the sunshine is so bright and all-revealing. Save mascara and eyeshadow, too, for evening.

Generally speaking, one needs more rouge and lipstick at night than in the daytime. If your evening date begins while it still is quite light, put on a careful daytime makeup, carry a bit of rouge and some mascara with you and then put on more rouge and apply the eye makeup when it gets dark. If you start out in full evening makeup, you'll look too carry rouge with you, you'll look positively washed out once the sun goes down and the lights are turned on.

REMOVAL ONLY

Remember you are voting on REMOVAL Saturday, June 11, 1938, and NO TAX of any KIND or AMOUNT is to be voted on in THIS ELECTION. The only thing on the ballot will be:

For Change Against Change For Hope

But if removal carries Saturday, you will vote on CONSTRUCTION and TAX at the NEXT GENERAL ELECTION in November, and a MAJORITY OF THOSE VOTING must vote "FOR CONSTRUCTION" and "FOR BUILDING TAX" before ANY BUILDING can be constructed and before ANY TAX CAN BE LEVIED. This is a part of the Constitution, and neither the legislature, the levying court, nor any other tribunal can change this law. YOU must vote the tax YOURSELVES.

The law regulating the construction of any Court House and the levying of any building tax is found in Amendment No. 17 to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, which was adopted at the general election in November, 1928, and is as follows:

You Vote The Building Tax

"Section 1. The power and right is hereby vested in the qualified electors of each respective county in this State by a majority of the said electors voting on the question, to authorize the construction, reconstruction, or extension of any County Court House, or County Jail, and to authorize the levy of a tax not to exceed one-half of one per cent on the dollar of the valuation of all properties in such county subject to taxation to defray the costs and expenses thereof, or to take up any indebtedness existing at the time of adoption hereof incurred in building, construction or extending any County Court House or Jail."

County Court Prepares The Plans

"Section 2. The County Court of any county may, by proper order duly entered of record determine whether or not the necessity for any such construction, reconstruction, or extension exists, and when such necessity is found to exist, said County Court shall cause to be made and prepared such plans, specifications, or estimates of cost of such contemplated improvements as may be proper for a reasonable understanding of the nature, extent, and approximate cost thereof, and may employ an architect for said purpose, which said plans, specifications and estimates shall be filed in the office of the County Clerk of such county, and remain and be held subject to the inspection of any and all persons interested.

You Vote On Building And Tax At Next General Election

"Section 3. Any and all such plans, specifications, and estimates may, when considered, be rejected by the County Court, and new ones, or alteration of the the original ones ordered to be made, and when such preliminary set of such plans, specifications, and estimates is filed and shall meet the approval of such County Court, an order approving same shall be entered of record, and the Court shall order and direct the question of the construction of such building or extensions to be submitted to the qualified electors of such county in the next General Election held thereafter; provided, however, that if no General Election for County and State officers will, under the law, be held within one year of the making of said order, then the County Court may, by order entered of record, call a Special Election in such county, to be held not less than thirty (30) days nor more than sixty (60) days thereafter, and shall name the date therefor. Such Special Election shall, in all other respects, be held as is now or hereafter may be provided by law, for the holding and conducting of General Elections, and it shall be, and is hereby made, the duty of the Sheriff of such county by proclamation duly made and published for the time, and as provided by law, to give notice of the proper time and place of holding such election.

"Section 4. It is hereby made the duty of the usual Election Officers to prepare the ballots and to hold such election in manner and form as is now or hereafter may be provided by law, and to certify the returns thereof to the County Court. If a majority voting in such election shall vote for such improvement, then the County Court shall make and enter of record an order showing the total vote for and the total vote against such. More than one building or improvement may be embodied in all such proceedings, except that separate plans, specifications and estimates for each building or extension shall be made and filed, and a description of each building sufficient to indicate to the electors with reasonable certainty what building or extension he is voting on, shall appear upon the ballot, beneath which shall appear the words "For Construction and "Against Construction," after each contemplated improvement, and there shall also appear upon said ballot the words "For Building Tax" and "Against Building Tax."

YOU CAN VOTE

1. If you paid your 1936 poll tax on or before June 15, 1937, OR you can vote WITHOUT A POLL TAX RECEIPT if you have become 21 years of age AT ANY TIME since APRIL 10, 1936.

2. If you have lived in the State twelve months, in Hempstead County six months, and in the ward or precinct thirty days.

If you favor removal, vote
as follows:

FOR CHANGE
AGAINST CHANGE FOR HOPE

REMEMBER:

YOU CAN VOTE WITHOUT A POLL
TAX RECEIPT IF YOU HAVE BECOME
TWENTY-ONE YEARS OF AGE SINCE
APRIL 10, 1936.

Court House Removal Committee.
